

Synopsis

A snapshot of the chapter

The following day, after the uproar, Paul was brought before the Jewish Council (22:30). Here he gives another impassioned defense (the second in two chapters). This leads to an altercation with the High Priest and then a division of the Council with some being Pharisees and some Sadducees. Again the commander, fearing that Paul would be harmed, takes him away and brings him back to the barracks. The following night a plot to take Paul's life is revealed by Paul's nephew. The commander determines to send Paul away from Jerusalem to Caesarea. That is accomplished at night and Paul sent into the oversight of Felix, the Roman Governor who says he will hear Paul's accusers when they come.
